

Set in Tanajablanca, a mythical city somewhere between Tangiers and Casablanca, the story takes place in the foyer of a seedy hotel where a group of shipwrecked survivors are holed up, and an international financier ends up shot, strangled and stabbed.

All of the occupants are horrified, but none of them want the police involved so they decide to sell the body in the Casbah. They wrap the body in bandages to disguise it and throw it out the window for Ali to collect - but the body disappears!

So does this mean --- in Casablanca -- can anyone get away with murder????
