

"... All of the performances were very solid with sound support from Pam Alick as ... Aunt Lavinia Penniman, Martin Blum as dubious suitor Morris Townsend, Samantha Porter (who managed to bring life & presence to the traditionally thankless role of the maid Maria ... The action was played out against a single, and excellently designed set that gave the solidity of a comfortable middle-class sitting room ... the characters - and especially the females - wore a splendid range of costumes and hats ... It was a pleasure to get drawn into the drama of a traditional play of a bygone era" Anne Ring (Review Stagediary.com) - 22 September 2001
